VERIFIABLE SCIENCE

In the body, L-phenylalanine is converted to L-tyrosine.¹ The amino acid L-tyrosine is a precursor of catecholamine neurotransmitters, including L-dopa, dopamine, epinephrine and norepinephrine.² These neurotransmitters are responsible for supporting emotional well-being and mental function. L-Tyrosine plays a role in promoting healthy neurotransmitter function in response to environmental and emotional stress. Research has indicated its potential to further support cognitive function and memory under stressful conditions.³ In one study, L-tyrosine helped support mood in subjects with low dopamine levels.⁴ L-Tyrosine is also a key component in the synthesis of thyroid hormones.^{5†}
